WORLD WAR II SUBMARINE EPIC FILMS IN JUPITER, FL.

"USS SEAVIPER" The Movie, is the first submarine based feature whose submarine components have been shot entirely aboard a World War II Era Gato Class Sub and as many as nine other scenes will be shot in South Florida!

Tim Large as Chief Kenan

It's 1944 and the backs of the AXIS Alliance have been broken...or have they?

Captain Culpepper spends a quiet evening with his wife Laura and as they begin to dance he is ordered to leave by his commanding officer. As the Shore Patrol escort Captain Culpepper to the Vice Admirals quarters he truly wonders if he will see his beautiful wife again.

German and Japanese Soldiers have gathered on an Island in the South Pacific in a last ditch effort to turn the tide of the war. Will the crew of the "USS Seaviper" be able to rescue 4 downed pilots and stop Axis troops from delivering the ingredients for the ultimate weapon?

Villani-Rockhill Productions in association with Saturn Sound Studios & Status Productions will be filming at Guanabanas Island Bar and Restaurant on Monday July 13, 2009. Guanabanas is located at 997 North Highway A1A, Jupiter, FL 33477.

"We are extremely excited about this film; 25 crew, 40+ actors, and over 200 extras. "We truly believe this will be an epic tribute to the men and women in the armed services...", said Ralph Villani, Director. A documentary entitled: "USS DRUM 228, The Untold Story" is also being filmed. Several of the veterans from the USS Drum (SS-228) live right here in S. Florida.
